CCTV

The Council's CCTV does not record sound, so although comments can be provided about numbers of people, this does not indicate a noise issue. Currently, there is a camera at the junction of Park Road and St Helens Road, but the visibility is limited to around the Small Lane junction. Later this year the Council's CCTV network is due to be expanded and there will be three more cameras along St Helens Road and further cameras in Moor Street and near the Church. After this time, more information may be available in relation to anti-social behaviour away from licensed premises. At the current time CCTV staff could not provide any evidence to support the introduction of an EMRO.
