Summary

The Local Government Association (LGA) measures resident satisfaction with councils every four months. This report presents the results of the 32nd round of polling conducted in June 2022.

Six key indicators are used to measure residents' views of their local council. Respondents are also asked to indicate their level of satisfaction with nine council services. Other questions focus on perceptions of safety, trust in politicians and government, and media coverage of councils. Additional questions are occasionally asked.

Methodology

Between 13th June and 21st June 2022, a representative random sample of 1,002 British adults (aged 18 or over) was polled by telephone by Yonder Data Solutions. The same set of questions is asked in the same order each round to allow for the reporting of any changes in the overall views of the general public about the reputation of local government. A full set of interview questions is included in Annex B for information.

Key messages

Five of the six key measures of satisfaction received positive feedback from most respondents. There were no significant changes compared to February 2022; slight increases were observed for satisfaction with one's area as a place to live and perceptions of feeling informed by one's council, whereas slight decreases were observed for the remaining four. Trust in local councillors remains high; 71 per cent of respondents selected 'local councillors' rather than 'members of parliament' or 'government ministers' when asked who they most trust to make decisions about local service provision.

The proportion of respondents who agreed that their council acts on the concerns of residents was just over half, the joint lowest result across all rounds. Perceived value for money delivered by one's council, and levels of trust in one's council, were comparatively low; they had increased significantly during the pandemic. Parks and greens spaces, and waste collection, received the highest levels of satisfaction with council services across all rounds of polling, whereas satisfaction with sport and leisure services and services and support for children and young people reached record lows (but sizable neutral responses were a factor for both).

Results

- 81 per cent of respondents are 'very satisfied' or 'fairly satisfied' with their local area as a place to live.
- 63 per cent of respondents are 'very satisfied' or 'fairly satisfied' with the way their local council runs things.

- 58 per cent of respondents trust their local council ‘a great deal’ or ‘a fair amount’.
- 57 per cent of respondents think their local council keep residents ‘very well informed’ or ‘fairly well informed’ about the services and benefits it provides.
- 52 per cent of respondents think their local council acts on the concerns of residents ‘a great deal’ or ‘a fair amount’.
- 45 per cent of respondents ‘strongly agree’ or ‘tend to agree’ that their council provides value for money – and 28 per cent neither agree nor disagree.
- 70 per cent of respondents said they most trust their ‘local council’ to make decisions about how services are provided in their local area compared to 14 per cent who said they most trusted ‘the government’ and 14 per cent who said ‘neither’.
- 71 per cent of respondents singled out ‘local councillors’ rather than ‘members of parliament’ (eight per cent) or ‘government ministers’ (six per cent), as the individuals they most trust to make decisions about how services are provided in their local area.
- Most respondents were satisfied with five of the nine councils services presented in this round. Parks and greens spaces, and waste collection, received the highest levels of satisfaction; 81 per cent of respondents were ‘very satisfied’ or ‘fairly satisfied’ with these services.
- 76 per cent of respondents that said they felt ‘very safe’ or ‘fairly safe’ when outside in their local area after dark and 95 per cent said they felt ‘very safe’ or ‘fairly safe’ during the day.
- 24 per cent of respondents said they have observed positive media coverage of their local council the last few months. For ‘local councils across the country’ this figure is 16 per cent and 11 per cent of respondents reported having observed positive media coverage of the government.

Introduction

This report outlines the 32nd set of results in a series of regular Local Government Association (LGA) public polls on resident satisfaction with local councils, conducted every four months.¹

As well as providing a regular, long-term view of public opinions of councils at a national level, this polling also provides comparator figures for councils who wish to benchmark their own local survey results. To assist with this, we have developed a set of questions and guidance for councils conducting surveys within their own area.

Tracking national changes in satisfaction with councils, alongside other questions on related issues about residents' local areas, can provide valuable information on what is driving resident perceptions and, therefore, what councils can do to serve their local communities better.

Many additional factors will influence resident views of councils at a local level, including local demographics, economic factors and social circumstances. It is important, therefore, that polling results are viewed as complementary to a wider approach aimed at understanding and responding to communities at a local level.

Comparison against national polls provides context and trends, and helps to identify possible relationships with other variables, but councils could include additional questions in their local surveys and conduct other engagement activities. Analysis of this information might help diagnose what other factors are driving satisfaction levels locally.

¹ Note that until October 2014, the polling was conducted quarterly. It was later changed to once every four months.

Methodology

Between 13th June and 21st June 2022, a representative random sample of 1,002 British adults (aged 18 or over) was polled by telephone.² Respondents were given the following preamble at the outset:

“I would like to ask you some questions about your local council. Local councils are responsible for a range of services such as refuse collection, street cleaning, planning, education, social care services and road maintenance.

If you live in an area with more than one council, please think about the way in which they deliver services to you overall. This would include district and county councils. We are doing this to keep the survey simple as it is part of a national study.”

A full set of interview questions is included in Annex B for information. Where the questions cover the same topics as the question set for local surveys, the same question ordering, wording, definitions and preamble have been used to allow comparability.³

Notes

Where tables and figures report the base, the description refers to the group of people who were asked the question. The number provided refers to the unweighted number of respondents who answered each question.

This is the 32nd round of polling in this series, and the paper examines trends since the first round in September 2012.⁴ Differences between results are highlighted within the report where this is statistically significant.⁵

Please note the following when reading the report:

- Throughout the report percentages in figures and tables may add to more than 100 due to rounding.
- The following conventions are used in tables: ‘*’ - less than 0.5 per cent; ‘0’ – no observations; ‘-’ – category not applicable/data not available.

² Quotas were set on age, gender and region and the data weighted to the known British profile of age, gender, region, social grade, taken a foreign holiday in the last three years, tenure, number of cars in the household, working status, and mobile only households. The polling was conducted by Yonder Data Solutions, formerly Populus Data Solutions.

³ The mode of data collection can have a marked impact on results; therefore, results are only comparable with surveys conducted via telephone.

⁴ The full papers outlining the results of previous polls can be found here:

<https://www.local.gov.uk/our-support/research/research-publications/residents-satisfaction-surveys>

⁵ Statistical significance is tested at the 95 per cent level.

Polling on resident satisfaction with councils

This section outlines the polling results for June 2022. Tables showing the full response breakdowns for every answer option for this round can be found in Annex A. In addition, Annex C – a full set of Excel tables showing all results for all years – accompanies this report.

Overall satisfaction with local area

A total of 81 per cent of respondents reported being ‘very satisfied’ or ‘fairly satisfied’ with their local area as a place to live in this round. This level of satisfaction is higher than the last two rounds and similar to June 2021. While not a significant increase from February, satisfaction has returned to a level above 80 per cent. See Figure 1.

Figure 1: Overall, how satisfied or dissatisfied are you with your local area as a place to live?⁶

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-22

Overall satisfaction with local council

A total of 63 per cent of respondents said they were ‘very satisfied’ or ‘fairly satisfied’ with how their council runs things. This round’s result is a significant increase from the 56 per cent reported in October 2021 (comfortably the lowest to-date) and similar to the figure reached in February 2022 (64 per cent). See Figure 2.

⁶ Local area was defined as “the area within 15 to 20 minutes walking distance from your home”.

Figure 2: Overall, how satisfied or dissatisfied are you with the way your local council(s) runs things?

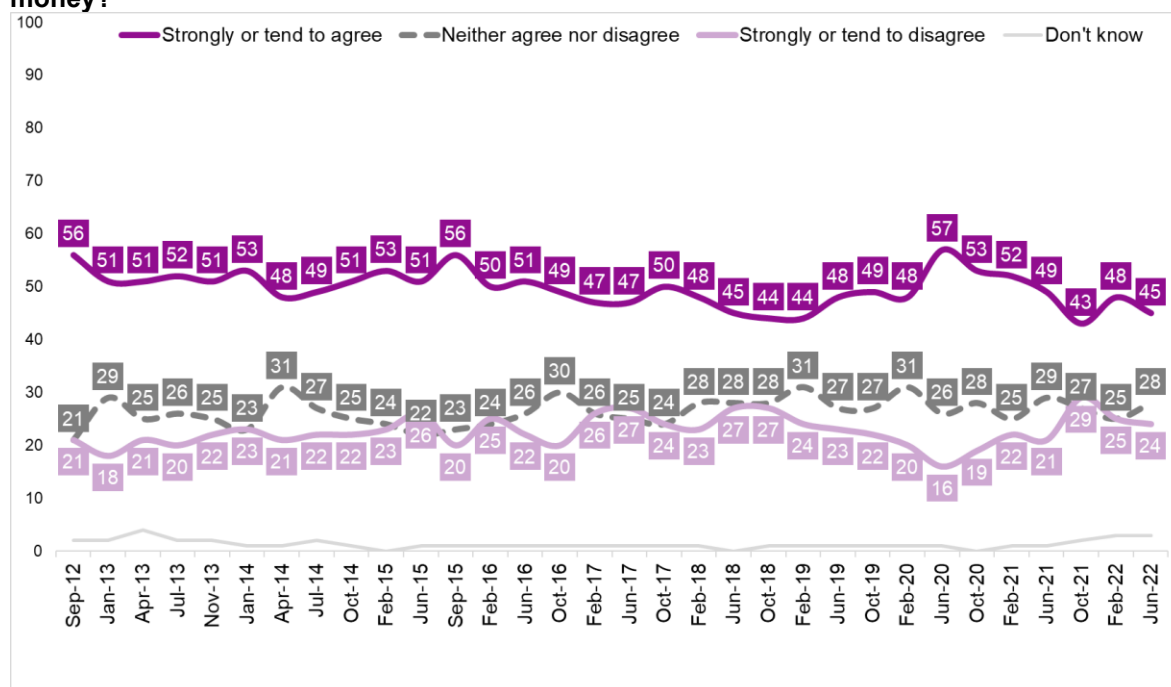

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-22

Value for money

Forty-five per cent of respondents agreed that their council provides value for money (see Figure 3). This result is one of the lowest assessments for this indicator in the last couple of years (agreement increased to over 50 per cent during the pandemic). More than a quarter of respondents (28 per cent) gave a neutral reply. Of the six indicators of resident satisfaction, perceptions about value for money have always received much lower positive ratings than the other measures. This is largely due to a greater proportion of respondents giving neutral responses (i.e. neither agreeing nor disagreeing with the statement) relative to the other indicators of satisfaction.

Figure 3: To what extent do you agree or disagree that your local council(s) provides value for money?⁷

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-22

Council responsiveness

Fifty-two per cent of respondents said their council acts on the concerns of local residents either ‘a great deal’ or ‘a fair amount’. While this represents the majority of respondents, it is the joint lowest result for this indicator (with October 2021). Between June 2020 and June 2021, about two-thirds of respondents gave a positive answer to this question. Acting on the concerns of local people is an important measure of local accountability as it looks at whether councils are perceived to be responsive to local issues and problems (see Figure 4).

⁷ The following preamble was used: “In considering the next question, please think about the range of services your local council(s) provides to the community as a whole, as well as the services your household uses. It does not matter if you do not know all of the services your local council(s) provides to the community. We would like your general opinion.”

Figure 4: To what extent do you think your local council(s) acts on the concerns of local residents?

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-22

Informed about the council

Fifty-seven per cent of respondents were satisfied with the information received from their local council about the services and benefits it provides. This follows similar results in the last two rounds. Significantly higher results were observed between June 2020 and February 2021. This round's figure is similar to those reported before the pandemic, in 2019. See Figure 5.

Figure 5: Overall, how well informed do you think your local council(s) keeps residents about the services and benefits it provides?

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-22

Trust in forms of government

Fifty-eight per cent of respondents reported trusting their local council either ‘a great deal’ or ‘a fair amount’. This figure is lower than the polling average (61 per cent) for this question. It shows a decrease from the last round, and while not a significant decrease, it sees levels of trust drop below the 60 per cent bracket. See Figure 6.

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Sep-12 to Jun-22

Seven out of ten respondents (70 per cent) said they trusted their 'local council', as opposed to 'the government', to make decisions about how services are provided in their local area (see Figure 7)

Figure 7). This result is broadly consistent with all previous rounds. Fourteen per cent of respondents answered 'the government', 14 per cent said 'neither' and three per cent were unsure.

Figure 7: Who do you trust most to make decisions about how services are provided in your local area?⁸

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1036 British adults per round from Jul-13 to Jun-22

Seventy-one percent of respondents selected 'local councillors', rather than 'members of parliament' or 'government ministers', as the individuals they most trusted to make decisions about how services were provided in their local area (see Figure 8). Eight per cent of respondents selected 'members of parliament', six per cent selected 'government ministers', 11 per cent selected 'none of these' and three per cent were unsure.

⁸ 'Neither' was not read out to respondents as an answer option but the interviewer could code it if it was given spontaneously.

Base (all respondents): Between 1000 and 1009 British adults per round from Jan-14 to Jun-22. This question was introduced in January 2014.

Community safety

More than three-quarters of respondents reported feeling safe after dark when outside in their local area (76 per cent). This is similar to the polling average for perceptions of safety after dark (77 per cent). See Figure 9.

⁹ 'None of the above' was not read out to respondents as an answer option but the interviewer could code if it was given spontaneously.

Perceptions of feeling safe during the day remain very high. Ninety-five per cent of respondents said they feel 'very safe' or 'fairly safe' during the day in their local area. See Figure 10.

¹⁰ Local area was defined as “the area within 15 to 20 minutes walking distance from your home”.

¹¹ Local area was defined as “the area within 15 to 20 minutes walking distance from your home”.

Service-specific satisfaction

Respondents were invited to indicate how satisfied or dissatisfied they were with the following council services¹²: waste collection; street cleaning; road maintenance; pavement maintenance; library services; sport and leisure services; services and support for older people; services and support for children and young people; and parks and green spaces. Tables showing the full set of service-specific satisfaction results can be found at Annex B.

Five of the nine services presented in this round received positive feedback from over half of the respondents (see Figure 11). The highest levels of satisfaction were with parks and green spaces and waste collection; 81 per cent of respondents were 'very satisfied' or 'fairly satisfied' with these services. The third highest level of satisfaction was with street cleaning (66 per cent). These results are higher than overall satisfaction with how one's council runs things (63 per cent, see Figure 2).

Overall, road maintenance continues to have the highest level of dissatisfaction of all services; 51 per cent of respondents were either 'very dissatisfied' or 'fairly dissatisfied' with the service provided by their council.

Base (all respondents): 1002 British adults in Jun-22

¹² Note that these questions were asked of all respondents, and the bases include those who may not have used particular services.

The general trend for satisfaction with services across the polling time-series is shown in Figure 12. In this round, satisfaction with two of the nine services was observed to be at a level higher than the polling average. More respondents were satisfied with parks and green spaces and also library services than in the previous round, although not significantly higher numbers. Record low levels of satisfaction were observed for sports and leisure services and services and support for children and young people, but 31 and 41 per cent, respectively, gave either a neutral or don't know answer.

Media portrayal of government

Respondents were asked whether, overall, they thought that the media has viewed the following forms of government positively or negatively in the last few months: 'the government'; 'local councils across the country'; and their 'own local council'.

Regarding 'the government', the proportion of respondents observing positive coverage was 11 per cent. This is the lowest proportion of results for positive coverage since October 2019. The proportion observing negative coverage was 67 per cent (significantly higher than 23 previous rounds) and the proportion who responded 'neither positively nor negatively' was 17 per cent.

Concerning the media's coverage of 'local councils across the country', 16 per cent of respondents observed positive coverage – a significant decrease from 20 per cent in the previous round, but similar to results recorded in the two years before the pandemic. The proportion of respondents observing negative coverage was 32 per cent and 41 per cent of respondents observed neither positive nor negative coverage.

Asked about media coverage of their 'own local council', 24 per cent of respondents observed positive coverage. Sixteen per cent of respondents reported negative coverage and 45 per cent of respondents observed neither positive nor negative coverage.

Figure 13 shows the proportion of respondents who said that media coverage had been positive, since September 2012. The full set of figures can be found at Annex A.

INTRODUCTION

I would like to ask you some questions about your local council. Local councils are responsible for a range of services such as refuse collection, street cleaning, planning, education, social care services and road maintenance.

If you live in an area with more than one council please think about the way in which they deliver services to you overall. This would include district and county councils. We are doing this to keep the survey simple as it is part of a national study.

1. Overall, how satisfied or dissatisfied are you with your local area as a place to live?

Please consider your local area to be the area within 15–20 minutes walking distance from your home.
